INDIA'S FURNITURE MARKET IS READY TO RULE: WHILE BIG GLOBAL GIANTS ARE MOVING IN, INDIAN BRANDS ARE NOT TOO FAR BEHIND

The relationship between Poltrona and India isn't just about selling furniture. It's about introducing a new level of luxury and experience

-Nicola Coropulis,
CEO, Poltrona FRAU

In India, a land where tradition and modernity collide with every sunrise, a quiet revolution is reshaping the furniture industry. For decades, the Indian furniture market has been synonymous with local craftsmanship and heritage brands, steeped in history. But, this landscape is gradually transforming to become a vibrant playground for global luxury brands.

International names such as Poltrona Frau, Pottery Barn and IKEA have introduced their design philosophies and craftsmanship to the Indian market. The $20-billion Indian furniture market—the fourth-largest globally—is expected to see a CAGR (compound annual growth rate) of 14% to reach $34 billion by 2028, according to data from Deloitte. However, it is worth noting that a significant portion of this market remains unorganised. The organised sector currently accounts for just 21% (around $4 billion) of the market. But its share is expected to more than double to $8.1 billion by 2028. This offers a substantial opportunity for brands to scale and increase market penetration, driving the growth of branded furniture.
